

A close-up photograph of a grey metal casting part. The part has a cylindrical flange at the top with a central threaded hole. On the side of the part, there is a rectangular area highlighted with a red box. This area contains a small, square, raised feature, likely a casting mark or a small hole. The background is blurred, showing another part of the assembly.